6. Add 2 Tbsp. toasted sesame oil, 1 tsp. sugar, remaining chopped chiles, and remaining 1 Tbsp. soy sauce, and remaining 1 Tbsp. white wine vinegar or apple cider vinegar to reserved raw brussels sprouts and toss well to coat. Taste and add more vinegar if you want more zing.
7. To finish nasi goreng, return skillet to medium heat and add steamed rice. Cook, stirring gently, until heated through and rice is incorporated, about 5 minutes. Taste and season with more salt if needed. Transfer to a platter and scatter raw brussels sprouts over.

· 60 ml . virgin coconut or other neutral oil — divided
· 45 ml . rice vinegar
· 30 ml . smooth peanut butter

6. Line a plate with a triple layer of paper towels. Heat remaining 2 Tbsp. coconut oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium until shimmering. Cook tofu, turning occasionally with tongs, until deeply golden and crispy, about 2 minutes per side, 6–8 minutes total (some spots wo...

7. Increase heat to medium-high. Cook broccolini and remaining ¼ tsp. salt, tossing occasionally, until bright green and still crisp, 1–2 minutes. (If you ended up with a bunch of thick-stemmed broccolini this may take another few minutes.) Arrange over quinoa in bowl. Let pan co...

8. Pour sauce into skillet and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until reduced by half and sticky-looking when you swirl the pan, 30–60 seconds.

9. Remove from heat and return tofu to pan, tossing in sauce to evenly coat.

10. Arrange broccolini and tofu over quinoa. Drizzle remaining sauce over. Serve with reserved lime wedges alongside.

4. Place the chicken in a large stock pot, cover with cold water by 1 inch (2 cm), and season with salt to taste.

8. Cover salad with plastic wrap, pressing it directly onto the surface. Let salad sit at least 30 minutes before serving (or transfer salad to an airtight container and chill up to 3 days). This allows the dates to soften and other ingredients to soak up all the lemon juice, oil...
9. Before serving, toss salad together, then taste and season with more salt and lemon juice, if needed.

9. Set an inverted heatproof plate, slightly smaller than the circumference of the pot, over the rice. This weighs down the maqlubeh, helping it retain its distinctive layers.
10. Ladle broth on top until it reaches approximately 3/4 inch (2cm) above the rice and other ingredients. Cover, set on medium heat and bring to a boil, then reduce heat to maintain a strong simmer and cook for 10 minutes. Lower the heat to a very gentle simmer and cook until all...

Mujadara 4 servings

Bon Appetit · vegetarian, gluten-free

INGREDIENTS

- Kosher salt
- 70 g Raisins
- 1 Lemon
- 4 medium Onions
- 60 ml Plus 3 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil — divided
- 2 g Sugar
- 240 ml French green lentils
- 240 ml Basmati rice
- 1 ml Ground cinnamon
- 11 ml Ground coriander — divided
- 11 ml Ground cumin — divided
- 120 ml Fried shallots — divided
- 120 ml Parsley leaves with tender stems
- 125 g Plain greek yogurt
- Freshly ground black pepper

METHOD

1. Bring a large pot of generously salted water to a boil. Meanwhile, place ½ cup raisins in a small bowl. Squeeze in juice from one half of lemon and pour 1 Tbsp. very hot water over. This will plump them up. Stir to combine; set aside until ready to use.
2. Halve and peel 4 medium onions. Go ahead and suit up with some protective eyewear, if that's necessary for you. Thinly slice onions into half-moons (you should have about 7 cups). This is a fair amount of slicing, but it's almost the only knifework.
3. Caramelize the onions: Heat ¼ cup extra-virgin olive oil in a large skillet over medium. Add onions and stir to coat in oil. Season with salt, then reduce heat to low and cover skillet (use a baking sheet if you don't have a lid). Cook, stirring occasionally, until onions are ...

5. Meanwhile, add 1 cup French green lentils to boiling salted water. Stir so there are no sinkers or stickers, then cook, stirring occasionally, until cooked through but still al dente, 20–25 minutes. Drain and set aside. Wipe pot dry.
6. As lentils cook, rinse the rice. The easiest way to do this is to place 1 cup basmati rice in a medium bowl, cover with cold water, swish rice with your hand, then dump out the water in a swift, fluid motion (the rice will stay at the bottom of the bowl!). Repeat twice. Set ri...
7. Heat 2 Tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil in same pot over medium-high until hot. Add ¼ tsp. ground cinnamon, 2 tsp. ground coriander, and 2 tsp. ground cumin and cook, stirring, until fragrant and a shade darker, about 30 seconds.
8. Add rice and 2 tsp. Diamond Crystal or 1¼ tsp. Morton salt and stir to coat the rice in the spices, about 30 seconds. Pour in 1½ cups water and bring to a boil (it might happen almost immediately!). Reduce heat to lowest setting, cover with lentils in an even layer, and cover ...
9. Your onions should be caramelized by now! Add raisins (and any liquid in bowl) and stir to combine. Transfer onion mixture to pot with rice. Add half of fried shallots and juice from remaining lemon half. Stir to combine, season with salt, and keep covered until ready to use.

10. Now the finishing touches. Coarsely chop ½ cup parsley leaves with tender stems. Mix ½ cup plain Greek yogurt and remaining 1 Tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil, ¼ tsp. coriander, and ¼ tsp. cumin in a small bowl. Season with salt and pepper.

11. Transfer mujadara to a platter. Top with parsley and remaining fried shallots. Serve with yogurt sauce alongside.

- 225 g . chayote — peeled, seeded, and cut into 3-in (7.5-cm) matchsticks
- 1 small Turnip — peeled and cut into 1-in (2.5-cm) cubes
- 2 medium Carrots — peeled and cut into 3-in (7.5-cm) matchsticks
- 125 g . green beans — trimmed and cut into 2-in (5-cm) lengths
- 125 g . firm tofu or tempeh — cut into 1-in (2.5-cm) cubes
- 1 -in (2.5-cm) piece fresh galangal — cut into coins (optional)
- 1 Plump stalk lemongrass — trimmed and smashed
- 175 g . lacinato kale or other hearty green vegetable — shredded
- 5 ml . fine sea salt
- 2.5 ml Freshly ground pepper
- 2 g Granulated sugar
- Fried shallots — for garnish

METHOD

1. Rinse the rice 2 to 3 times until the water runs clear. Cook in a rice cooker if you have one (measure rice using a standard measuring cup, not a rice-cooker cup), or on the stovetop, with 2 cups of water.
2. To prepare the banana leaves, gently unfold them and run one leaf under hot running water to soften. Trim off the tough outer edge with scissors. Cut a length of banana leaf-it has to be big enough to line a loaf pan and have enough overhang, about 5 to 6 inches (12 to 15 cm),...
3. Line a loaf pan with the banana leaf, shiny-side down (the side with the ridges). If it tears, just patch it with another.
4. While the rice is still hot, pack it into the pan, pressing down to compress. Fold the two ends of the leaf over so they overlap in the middle. Tuck in the edges. If the leaf isn't long enough, cover the gap with another leaf.
5. Leave to cool for at least 2 hours. (You can also refrigerate it to speed up the process.) If you leave it in the pan overnight, the rice will be imbued with the delicate, tea-like flavor and fragrance of the banana leaves.
6. Unmold carefully and peel off the banana leaves. Slice crosswise like a bread loaf and then cut into smaller rectangles or squares.
7. Make the spice paste by combining the chiles, garlic, shallots, ginger, and ground coriander in a mini food processor. Blitz to form a rough paste the texture of oatmeal.
8. Swirl the oil into a medium Dutch oven or heavy-bottomed pot and set over medium heat. When shimmering hot, add the spice paste and fry until it becomes aromatic and turns a few shades darker, 2 to 4 minutes.
9. Stir in the coconut milk and water. Add the chayote, turnips, carrots, green beans and tofu, and bring to a boil, adding more water to cover the vegetables if necessary. Drop in the galangal, if using, and lemongrass. Reduce the heat to a gentle simmer and cover. Simmer until ...
10. Stir in the kale, salt, pepper, and sugar. Continue to simmer until the kale is just tender, 2 to 4 minutes. Taste and adjust seasoning as needed. If possible, let the soup sit for 1 to 2 hours so the flavors can meld.
11. To serve, distribute Pressed Rice Cakes among 4 to 6 large shallow bowls. Pour ½ to ¾ cup (125 to 200 ml) sayur lodeh and vegetables into each bowl. Sprinkle with fried shallots and serve.

Sea Bean Salad With Daikon And Cucumber 4 servings

Epicurious · vegetarian, vegan, gluten-free

INGREDIENTS

- 2 large Cucumbers — peeled (about 1 1/2 pounds)
- 1 large Daikon radish — peeled
- 4 Scallions
- 225 g Sea beans
- 45 ml Rice wine vinegar
- 30 ml Canola oil
- 30 ml Toasted sesame oil
- 30 ml Tamari
- 10 ml Black sesame seeds
- 10 ml White sesame seeds
- 5 ml Sugar
- 2 Fresh shiso leaves — finely chopped

METHOD

1. 1. Cut the flesh of the cucumber into very thin noodle-like strips. Avoid the seeds by not cutting the very center of the cucumber. A mandoline works best, or use a knife and slice really thin.
2. 2. Cut the daikon into the same thin noodle-like strips. Here there are no seeds, so you can cut through the entire vegetable.
3. 3. Trim the roots of the scallions, then slice them into fine rings. Start at the white bottom and use about three-quarters of each scallion, until the leaves become much darker green and thicker.
4. 4. Combine the remaining ingredients in a medium bowl to ensure they are well mixed, then add all of the vegetables. Toss to combine, then cover and place in the refrigerator to marinate for at least 30 minutes, but no longer than 24 hours or they will get mushy. Serve chilled.

- 1 bunch Small tuscan kale — ribs and stems removed, leaves torn

Sumeshi (seasoned Sushi Rice)

Japanese · Serious Eats · gluten-free

INGREDIENTS

- 120 ml Unseasoned rice vinegar — such as Marukan Organic
- 50 g Plus 1 1/2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 35 g Diamond crystal kosher salt; if using table salt — use half as much by volume or the same weight
- One 2-inch-square piece of kombu
- 175 g Short-grain sushi rice — I recommend Tamaki Gold Koshihikari
- 240 ml Filtered water — or your favorite bottled brand

METHOD

1. For the Sushi Vinegar: In a stainless-steel bowl, whisk together the rice vinegar, salt, and sugar. Pour the solution into a nonreactive, airtight container and add kombu, making sure it is fully submerged. Allow kombu to infuse at room temperature for 24 hours.
2. For the Rice: The next day, place rice in a large bowl and add enough cold water to cover. Using your fingers, gently massage and swish the grains in a circular motion until the water turns cloudy, about 30 seconds. Drain through a fine-mesh strainer, then refill the bowl with...
3. Transfer rice to the fine-mesh strainer and set it atop the bowl used to rinse the rice. Run the rice under cold water for 2 to 3 minutes, allowing the bowl to overflow and spill over. Lightly agitate the rice as the water continues to run, which should help to filter out any ...
4. Turn off the water and empty the bowl. Allow the rice to drain and air dry in the strainer for 10 minutes with the empty bowl beneath to catch any excess water.
5. If using a rice cooker, add the rice and filtered water to the pot of a rice cooker and, using your fingers, evenly disperse the grains. If your cooker has a “sushi rice” setting, set it to that and cook. Otherwise use the standard white rice setting.
6. If cooking rice on the stove-top, place the rice and filtered water in a 2- to 3-quart heavy-bottomed pot and give the pot a good shake to level the rice. Bring to a boil over medium-high heat, lower to a gentle simmer, then cover and cook until water is fully absorbed, about ...
7. Measure 3 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon (50ml) sushi vinegar. Transfer hot rice into a wide, non-reactive container, such as a traditional wooden sushi oke/hangiri or 9-by 13-inch glass or ceramic baking dish; make sure not to transfer any crusty rice from the cooking pot (you c...
8. Hold a rice paddle or wooden spoon at a 45º angle above the rice. Slowly add the measured amount of sushi vinegar directly onto the paddle while waving the paddle back and forth to scatter and evenly distribute the vinegar onto the hot rice. Using long, sweeping strokes, smoot...
9. Once the rice is flat and all of the large clumps have been separated, push the rice into a pile on the side of the container nearest to you. Scoop the rice in small clusters, about the size of your paddle, and flip them towards the empty side of the container. Using swift cut...
10. Rest the rice for 4 minutes. Using the paddle, flip the rice from top to bottom in small portions until all the rice has been flipped. Let rest an additional 2 minutes. This step ensures the seasoned vinegar is evenly distributed at all depths of the rice.
11. The rice is now ready to use. If you used a rice cooker, clean the pot, line it with a clean damp towel, transfer the rice back into it, and set the rice cooker to the “warm” setting. Otherwise, cover the rice in the pot with a damp towel to prevent it from cooling too quickly...

INGREDIENTS

· 750 g Cooked sona masuri or basmati rice
· 240 ml Fresh or frozen grated coconut or dried unsweetened shredded coconut
· 2 g Plus 2 tbsp. ghee
· 30 g Very coarsely chopped cashews
· 2.5 ml Black mustard seeds
· 5 ml . urad dal — optional
· pinch Of asafetida
· 4–5 Fresh curry leaves
· 1 Dried red chile — broken in half
· 2 g Diamond crystal or 0.25 tsp. morton kosher salt — plus more

METHOD

1. If using freshly cooked rice, spread it out on a baking sheet and let cool. This will ensure that the grains will stay separate.
2. If using dried coconut, place in a small bowl and pour in hot water just to cover (coconut should absorb all the liquid, so you don't need to drain); let sit until coconut is plump, at least 10 minutes.
3. Melt ½ tsp. ghee in a wok or large skillet with a lid over medium heat. Toast cashews, stirring often, until golden brown, about 3 minutes. Transfer to paper towels and let cool.
4. Melt remaining 2 Tbsp. ghee in same wok, then add a mustard seed. As soon as the oil around the seed starts to sizzle or the seed moves, carefully add remaining mustard seeds, then urad dal (if using) and asafetida. Quickly cover pan and cook, shaking, until mustard seeds star...
5. Reduce heat to low. Rub curry leaves between your fingers to release their natural oils and carefully add to wok along with chile. Cover immediately (moisture from the curry leaves will cause the ghee to spatter). Once spattering subsides, uncover and stir to evenly coat.
6. Add rice to wok and stir to coat. Mix in coconut and salt. Cook, stirring often, until heated through, about 4 minutes. Mix about three fourths of cashews into rice. Remove from heat; taste thuppa anna and season with more salt if needed. Top with remaining cashews.

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 204°C (200 degrees C).
